Christian Education Research Centre (CERC)

Message from the Director

Dr Peter Williams

The Christian Education Research Centre (CERC) at Avondale University is focused around contributing research that improves Christian educational outcomes, and responds to the needs of today's educational setting. 2022 proved another rewarding year as our research publications contributed into several diverse educational contexts.

In 2022 CERC published its fourth volume in the 'Revealing Jesus in the Learning Environment' series, which is available for sale on Amazon. This book had a new editorial team, as Peter Williams and Kirsty Pearce continued the legacy of its former editorial members, and with four of the chapters contributed from overseas, it also has an international flavour which is exciting to see! A new initiative came into effect this year as well with a copy of the book forwarded to each of the ASA schools in Australia, where it is hoped it will act as a discussion starter for the continuing development of a research culture.

CERC also ran a number of symposiums, seminars and colloquiums, providing opportunities for guest speakers, current HDR candidates, academic staff, and research teams to disseminate their research, with a number of external stakeholders providing feedback that these research projects were relevant, current and informative in their specific contexts. Two such highlights included HDR candidates sharing their research in a '3-minute thesis' series of presentations with ASA National Education directors and Conference directors, while Professor Perry Glanzer, who has written or co-authored more than 100 books, book chapters and journal articles, visited from Baylor University in the United States to share some of his findings in the area of global Christian education.

I wish to thank each of the research teams and individuals associated with CERC for their research endeavours throughout 2022. This includes current staff involved in research, HDR candidates and their supervision teams, conjoint and adjunct research active staff, as well as other individuals who research in the area of Christian education. Their contributions in the research space are noted in the reportable items that follow.

Peter

Impact and Community

Impactful research remains a key outcome for the Christian Education Research Centre, with numerous publications helping to contribute to this in the field of Christian Education and the broader education sector.

Diverse research projects drawing from areas such as institutional support and academic wellbeing, science education, Christian character development, Higher Education institutional diversity, early childhood leadership, various elements of school gardening programs, the use of the Bible in Christian school learning programs, and managing oppositional defiance disorders from a Christian schools' perspective highlight the wide ranging scale of impacts CERC research activities can have. While such varying research projects target different corners of the Christian educational landscape, areas such as learning and teaching practices, curriculum development, school and educational system policy stand to gain from these research insights.

The Christian Education Research Centre again wishes to thank Adventist Schools Australia, and the continued strengthening of this relationship remains a strategic priority for CERC. Their ongoing willingness to support research endeavours adds value to Christian Education. Research informed learnings that have the potential to progress Christian Education remain the focus of our Research Centre, continuing the impact that can be had in both this life, and the life to come.

Finally, late in 2022 Professor Tracie Mafile'o joined Avondale University in a research-focused appointment. Tracie brings a significant track record of research and will link with CERC as part of her role to initiate and engage with research projects. We look forward to working with Tracie and continuing to link with stakeholder & community groups to further Christian educational research in 2023.

Lifestyle Medicine & Health Research Centre (LMHRC)

Message from the Director

Prof Darren Morton

In 2022, the Lifestyle Medicine and Health Research Centre (LMHRC) recorded many notable achievements in its four priority research areas: Infection Prevention and Control (led by Professor Brett Mitchell), Lifestyle Medicine and Positive Health (led by Professor Darren Morton), Nicotine Addiction and Cessation (led by Professor Renee Bittoun), and Health and Humanities (led by Associate Professor Carolyn Rickett).

A high moment for the LMHRC was when Professor Brett Mitchell was presented with the 2022 Commonwealth Health Minister's Award for Excellence in Health and Medical Research, which was awarded for being "a leading researcher tackling healthcare-associated infection". This remarkable achievement is a testament to the level of rigour and impact of Professor Mitchell's work and represents the culmination of a stellar research career.

In 2022, the LMHRC achieved 10 publications, including high-ranking academic journals such as Infection, Disease and Health and the Journal of Positive Psychology. LMHRC researchers were invited presenters at academic conferences and collectively the LMHRC obtained over 1.5 million dollars in research grant funding.

In addition to contributions made to the academic community, researchers from the LMHRC also demonstrated civic leadership and their work informed solutions to real-world problems. For example, a mental health and wellbeing intervention developed by Professor Darren Morton was offered to members of the Lifestyle Medicine Global Alliance, attracting participants from nearly 40 countries. Closer to home, Professor Renee Bittoun has been a leading voice and authority on "vaping", serving on high-level government committees and delivering numerous seminars on the topic. Further highlights of the LMHRC are included below in the impact and community engagement section.

The LMHRC looks forward to further strengthening its position in 2023 as it enhances health and wellbeing through high-impact research and community engagement.

Darren

Impact and Community

Members of the LMHRC were involved in a variety of activities in 2022 that made meaningful contributions to the academic and broader community. These included:

- Associate Professor Carolyn Rickett's book titled This Gift, This Poem was launched at the Newcastle Writer's Festival on 3rd April, 2022. The event was very successful and well received.
- Members of the LMHRC were active in presenting at academic conferences, both nationally and internationally. Professor Brett Mitchell was an invited speaker at the Australasian College for Infection Prevention and Control in Sydney, and Professor Maria Northcote delivered an oral presentation at the same conference titled "Patient perspectives of healthcare associated infection". Professor Mitchell was also an invited plenary speaker at the Central Coast Local Health District Research Symposium where he presented "Translating Research into Policy and Practice". Simon Matthews, Dr Melanie Renfrew, and Professor Darren Morton presented at the American College of Lifestyle Medicine conference in Florida, USA. Professor Darren Morton served as a MC at the Australasian Society of Lifestyle Medicine conference in Cairns, where he also delivered two presentations titled "Localised Lifestyle Medicine for large-scale impact" and "Meaning: a key upstream determinant of chronic disease". Professor Morton was also an invited presenter at the Goodfellow Conference for General Practitioners in New Zealand where he delivered a presentation titled "Helping Happiness".
- Simon Matthews (an Adjunct of the LMHRC) and Professor Darren Morton launched the first season of a podcast titled "Leaders in Lifestyle Medicine—the stories behind the story." The podcast interviewed pioneers in Lifestyle Medicine from around the world, including Professor Garry Egger.
- Dr Sonya Dawson presented a webinar through the Australian College of Nursing titled "Mercy ships from a nursing perspective", which drew from her remarkable experiences serving on the Mercy ships.
- The Lift Project, which is a mental health and wellbeing program developed by Professor Darren Morton, was used in various settings around the world in 2022. The American College of Lifestyle Medicine offered The Lift Project to all its members and those of its sister organisations around the world. Nearly 2,000 health professionals from 39 countries participated and the evaluation feedback was very positive, with publication pending. In addition, The Lift Project was used as a large-scale mental health and community development initiative by communities in Australia (Lake Macquarie City Council, Maroondah City Council, Richmond Valley Council) and the United States (Finger Lakes District County). To date, around 30,000 people worldwide have engaged with The Lift Project and the research effort surrounding the program of work has resulted in over 10 academic publications.
- The first graduate of Avondale's Master of Lifestyle Medicine course graduated in 2022. The course was developed in part to support the research activities of the LMHRC, and a publication from the graduating student's work is expected early in 2023.

Research Grants

In 2022, the following grants were received by members of the LMHRC:

External Grants

Projects

Building Evidence for Strategies to Prevent Healthcare Acquired Infections - Brett Mitchell (National Health & Medical Research Centre)

Upgrade to The Lift Project intervention – Darren Morton (Lift Lifestyle Medicine Pty Ltd - industry partnership)

In 2023, researchers from the LMHRC look forward to contributing further to the academic community and the common good.

Scripture, Spirituality, & Society Research Centre (SSSRC)

Message from the Director

Prof Robert K. McIver

Small research grants continue to be an important resource offered by the Scripture, Spirituality and Society Research Centre (SSSRC) at Avondale University. I am pleased to report that by the end of 2022, since their inception the small research grants program has assisted with research that has resulted in the publication of 3 monographs, 4 edited books, and 28 refereed chapters in books, as well as 5 articles in refereed journals. It is pleasing to note the two refereed journal articles published by Professor Daniel Reynaud in 2022 came from research partially supported by grants from the SSSRC.

In 2022, a research team associated with the SSSRC, which consisted of Professor Rob McIver (lead investigator), Dr Wendy Jackson, Dr Erika Puni, Dr Brendan Pratt, and Dr Stephen Currow, developed a survey and began using it to collect data from pastors in local Seventh-day Adventist Churches in all 13 Divisions of the world Adventist Church. They aim to have a report on this research completed for the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists by mid-2023 and are committed to making the results of the survey available through academic and popular publications.

A second team associated with the SSSRC, consisting of Professor Rob McIver (lead investigator), Associate Professor Peter Kilgour, Dr Sherene Hattingh, Dr Wendy Jackson, and Dr Stephen Currow continued collecting data for the General Conference Institutional Workers Survey. By the end of 2022, more than 10,000 employees of Adventist organisations had participated in this survey. Data has been collected from all of the 13 Divisions of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Highlights of data collected from teachers in Adventist Schools in Australia, North America and the Solomon Islands were presented at a research forum hosted by SSSRC in November. A video of the presentations by Peter Kilgour, Sherene Hattingh, Wendy Jackson and Rob McIver, under the title, "Surprising Results from Teachers in Adventist Schools in Australia, Solomon Islands and USA," may be accessed here.

A high calibre collaboration led by Avondale's Associate Professor Carolyn Rickett with Judith Beveridge, Jean Kent, Dr David Musgrave, and Professor Jen Webb also resulted in the publication of the book This Gift, This Poem. At its centre is the role literature can play in supporting the wellbeing of patients, their families, and those living and working in residential aged care. It also builds on the work of several previous poetry anthologies which provided opportunities to create community across writers from diverse backgrounds. The vision for the This Gift, This Poem anthology was to support the wellbeing of those feeling anxious and alone in hospital settings and residential care facilities, particularly during the COVID 19 lockdowns.

The book was launched and profiled at the 2022 Newcastle Writer's Festival:

Two initiatives started in 2022 look set to increase the research output of the SSSRC in 2023 and beyond. Firstly, Associate Professor Carolyn Rickett has been successfully recruiting like-minded academics to join her in a SSSRC research hub focused on textual analysis of literature or stories. Their aim is to encourage dialogue with colleagues who have shared interests in areas of communication, humanities, theology and creative practice. Secondly, the SSSRC also welcomes the appointment of Professor Tracie Mafie'o to a full-time research position at Avondale in 2023. She will be associated with the SSSRC in several of her research projects.

The list of publications associated with the research centre in 2022 includes a further 55 articles submitted by Milton Hook, an adjunct of the SSSRC, to the online Encyclopedia of Seventh-day Adventists. We celebrate his significant contribution to this important project.

Rob

Impact and Community

During 2022, the gathering of survey data from church pastors in Adventist Churches in all Divisions of the world Seventh-day Adventist Church, as well as gathering survey data from employees of Adventist organizations such as schools, Universities, Media Centres, Hospitals, and publishing houses in many different countries, has meant that the SSSRC is becoming much better known. Publications associated with this and other research projects, as well as contributions made in academic journals by members, adjuncts and conjoints of the SSSRC make significant contribution to knowledge in the areas of Scripture, Spirituality, and Society.

Higher Degree by Research (HDR)

Director's Report

Professor Maria Northcote

Of our 34 enrolled HDR candidates for 2022, 3 were enrolled in the Master of Philosophy (MPhil) degree and 31 were enrolled in the Doctor of Philosophy PhD degree, including:

- 13 candidates (1 MPhil, 12 PhD) enrolled in the Society & Culture (09) FOE;
- 14 candidates (1 MPhil, 13 PhD) enrolled in Education (07) FOE;
- 5 PhD candidates enrolled in the Health (06) FOE;
- 2 candidates (1 MPhil, 1 PhD) are enrolled in the Management and Commerce/Business (09) FOE

Please find below a collation of the activities facilitated and organised through the Research Office in relation to the Higher Degree Research Program in 2022:

- Course Implementation and Candidate Experiences

- Modifications to the MPhil and PhD webpages – to clarify the minimum, timely and maximum length of candidature, under the “Course Structure” section of the course webpages. These changes may have clarified some previously misunderstood issues associated with the requirements of enrolling in an MPhil or PhD degree. The revised course webpages have clarified the study requirements, admission criteria and length of candidature.
- External consultation was undertaken during the review of HDR-related policies. A number of policies are undergoing a major overhaul with some being retired, some being conflated with others, and others requiring clarification of wording to ensure alignment with course changes implemented in the 2020-2021 accreditation period.
- Research Services has implemented a trial period where HDR enquiries and applications are managed internally rather than outsourced to Student Services. This was also an action recommended by the external advisory panel during reaccreditation. It is hoped that this change will streamline the application process and improve transparency and efficiency.

- Research & Supervision Training Program

- To ensure the training events offered as part of the “Research & Supervisor Training Program” reach as many of our stakeholders as possible, we have expanded our invitation lists to these events to include to HDR candidates, HDR supervisors and Avondale’s researchers (including community members). This ensures that the “Research & Supervisor Training Program” is offered in a more cohesive manner and that the people in all of these groups can avail themselves of the suite of workshops, panel sessions, writing sessions and communities of practice offered as part of the “Research & Supervisor Training Program”.
- During 2022, we were successful in being granted an Academic Strengthening Partnership grant (valued at AU$120,000) from the Australian Government/Australia High Commission working in partnership with the Government of Papua New Guinea. The project was a collaborative initiative between staff at Pacific Adventist University in PNG and Avondale University titled Capacity-building novice supervisors: Developing and implementing a co-designed supervision training program using a participatory approach. During this project, we co-constructed, facilitated and evaluated three supervisor training workshops for novice HDR supervisors at Avondale University and Pacific Adventist University. The training was targeted specifically at novice research supervisors with 0-4 years’ experience. In addition to the collaborative project mentioned above, the major changes introduced to the Research & Supervisor Training Program in 2022 were:

- selection of external facilitators from other universities and higher education institutions;
- involving some candidates in facilitation of activities; and
- inclusion of HDR supervisors from Pacific Adventist University in PNG in some of our supervision workshops and training events.

Completions

At the end of 2022, four PhD candidates graduated from Avondale's HDR program:

- Rodgir Cohen, The Influence of Mishna Avot and Other Jewish Thought on Jesus's Teachings, With Special Reference to Nonviolent Resistance in Matthew 5:38–42
- Deborah Hurn, Identifying and Delineating the Geographic Regions of the Israelite Migration from Egypt to Canaan Using a Hydrological Approach
- Geraldine Przybylko, The Effective of a Digital Multicomponent Interdisciplinary Intervention on the Mental Health and Wellbeing of a Nonclinical Australasian Cohort
- Mel Renfrew, The Influence of Human Support on Adherence to, and Outcomes of an Online Interdisciplinary Mental Health Promotion Intervention for a Healthy Adult Cohort

Supervisor and Researcher Training

Our annual Research Training Calendar typically includes the following types of events:

- Research-focused workshops, panel discussions and presentations for candidates (supervisors and Avondale researchers are also invited), such as:
 - how to write a research proposal; and
 - how to ask for and receive feedback from supervisors
- Informal networking events for candidates and supervisors to share ideas and support each other, such as:
 - HDR Hangouts
 - Informal discussions
 - Researcher lunches
- Supervision-focused workshops for novice and experienced supervisors, such as:
 - Getting started in HDR supervision; and
 - Respectful supervision principles and practices
- Writing retreats and events, such as:
 - Shut Up and Write sessions
 - Writing retreats
- Research seminars, presented by:
 - Guest presenters/ researchers/ scholars (externally sourced)
 - Seminars hosted by Avondale's research centres
 - Research presentations hosted by Avondale researchers and HDR candidates

The content and nature of our research training calendar is informed by the following:

- the ongoing needs of Avondale's HDR supervisors and candidates, and researchers (informed by evaluation data collected from training events; recommendations from the Research Committee and Deans; and feedback from HDR candidates and supervisors);
- national agendas and trends (e.g., as identified by the Australian Council of Graduate Researchers) and standards (e.g., Threshold Standards for Research and Research Training); and
- Avondale's Strategic Plan and Research Plan.

The Avondale Academic Press (AvAP) was established in 1994 by the then Avondale College Council to publish and disseminate academic books and journals. It was expected that such books and academic journals would have some connection to the products of research and scholarship of Avondale staff members and conjoint academics, or with the objectives of the College.

With the exception of some co-published books, publications of Avondale Academic Press are available through either amazon.com or amazon.com.au.

The press is governed and managed by two committees, the Avondale Academic Press Management Committee, and the Avondale Academic Press Editorial Committee. These committees direct the activities of the Editor of the Avondale Academic Press, Robert McIver. In 2022 the members of the two committees were:

Management Committee:

Kerri-Lee Krause (chair)
Robert McIver (secretary)
Kelvin Peuser
Warrick Long

Editorial Committee:

Robert McIver (chair)
Darius Jankiewicz
Peter Kilgor
Daniel Reynaud
Lynden Rogers
Bev Christian
