

Calculating your tuition fees can be confusing, but we are here to help.

Fee calculations are based on your residency status and fee type, government funding arrangements, and the course of study you choose.

Residency Status and Fee Type

- 1 Domestic Commonwealth Supported Place (CSP)
- 2 Domestic Full Paying
- 3 International

A domestic student is an Australian citizen or permanent resident, a New Zealand citizen or, someone who holds a humanitarian visa. All other students are international students.

Government Funding (or CSP)

A CSP means that the Australian government partially subsidises course fees for domestic students, and you pay a student contribution. Most domestic Nursing and Education students at Avondale are offered a CSP.

Course of Study

Tuition fees vary depending on your residency status, government funding arrangements and study load.

Nursing and Education domestic students: A$498* student contribution per unit paid to Avondale. Eligible students can opt to defer this amount to a HECS-HELP loan, which can be paid through the taxation system later.

HECS-HELP upfront discount: If you are eligible for HECS-HELP assistance, and you pay at least $500 per unit of study as your student contribution, you will receive a discount of 10 per cent on the up-front payment you make. Visit www.studyassist.gov.au/help-loans/hecs-help to find out more.

All other domestic students: A$2,385* per unit. Full fee-paying students need to pay their tuition fees to Avondale in full. Eligible students can apply to defer their tuition fees to a FEE-HELP loan. Visit www.studyassist.gov.au/help-loans/fee-help to find out more.

International students: A$3,257* per unit. International students need to pay their tuition fees to Avondale before classes commence each teaching period. International students from the USA may be eligible for a student loan program.
